FROM the DIRECTOR

DEAR MEMBERS,

As we move into the fall, you will notice some changes to our admissions pricing, operating hours, and a free access program that began in July. In addition, you may have seen the new bilingual signage welcoming audiences to the Museum—the result of many internal conversations about how to make SBMA more accessible, especially to local audiences.

One of the more intriguing proposals came from a member of our security staff, who suggested offering a free Sunday when most people have a day off work. Inspired by this great idea and our commitment to serving our local communities, we now offer free admission to Tri-County residents (Santa Barbara, Ventura, and San Luis Obispo) every second Sunday of the month. This Free 2nd Sunday coincides with Studio Sunday, the Museum's ongoing free family art-making activation. We are excited to already see significant increases in attendance on these days. The Museum also remains free on first Thursday evenings (5–8 pm) to coincide with the community-wide 1st Thursday. All the other free access programs remain in place.

To balance these free opportunities, the Museum's Non-Member admission fees will increase for the first time in approximately 12 years. We made these changes after a survey of the prices of the other cultural venues in the area while trying to remain reasonably priced. The goal is to lower barriers to participation for our neighbors and maintain financial sustainability. We appreciate your support of these changes and look forward to welcoming even more of our community members on our Free 2nd Sundays.

We have so many exciting exhibitions and collection installations this upcoming season. Under the leadership of our new Chief Curator and Curator of Contemporary Art James Glisson, the curatorial team collaborated on a reinstallation of the Ridley-Tree Gallery in a fresh display that highlights our American, European, and Latin American collections. In the Asian Art galleries, you will see the reinstallation of the impressive 9th–10th century Garuda, the Man-Bird as a Guardian King. As part of the Contemporary Art program, we are featuring a special film project by the artist Dario Robleto and group shows devoted work by Latin American women artists in Accretion and queer artists in Friends & Lovers.

These eclectic offerings exemplify our inclusive approach to exploring the Museum's varied collections as well as celebrating diverse cultures with the goal of making everyone feel welcome. I look forward to seeing you in the galleries and, as always, appreciate your ongoing support.

Sincerely,

AMADA CRUZ
Eichholz Foundation Director

DARIO ROBLETO: THE SIGNAL

December 8, 2024 - May 25, 2025
McCormick and Gail Wasserman and Family,
Von Romberg, and Emmons Galleries

Dario Robleto: The Signal features the artist's feature-length film Ancient Beacons for Long Notice (2024) about Voyager II and a selection of artworks that relate to his dazzlingly inventive mining of the history of science and technology.

LEFT: Dario Robleto, Still from Ancient Beacons for Long Notice, 2024. 4K video, 5.1 surround sound installation. Commissioned by the Santa Barbara Museum of Art and Amon Carter Museum of American Art. © Dario Robleto

The film will be projected in the McCormick Gallery and will be shown alongside a selection of artworks. These will show his engagement with the problem of how humans leave traces of themselves, whether as sound recordings of voices, electrocardiograms and electroencephalograms, or as junk, and how these remainders fail to capture all the richness of what it means to be in love, worried, in other words, the textures of our emotional lives.

Dario Robleto: The Signal highlights the artist's multiyear exploration of the Golden Record, a gold-plated phonograph recording containing sounds and images selected in the late 1970s by a team at NASA to portray life on Earth to extraterrestrials. Supported by related sculptures and works on paper, the centerpiece of the exhibition is Robleto's newly commissioned work Ancient Beacons Long for Notice, an immersive, 70-minute film based on a rare and forgotten document—the first audio recording of warfare—which was considered for inclusion on the Golden Record. Ancient Beacons Long for Notice is the third and final installment in a trilogy of video and sound installations that comprise Robleto's years-long investigation of the scientific, philosophical, and moral tensions of attempts to represent the totality of human life even after humans cease to exist.

The commission of this film for the Santa Barbara Museum of Art was underwritten by Sheila Wald and Bill Pierce, The Museum Contemporaries, and an anonymous donor. This exhibition's realization at the Santa Barbara Museum of Art has been supported with gifts from the Resonance Foundation, Martha Gabbert, and Susan D. Bowey.

FRIENDS & LOVERS

September 22, 2024 – March 2, 2025
Loeb Family Gallery

LGBTQ+ people have forged circles of friendship and alternative families as they navigate their identity, need for authentic self-expression, and frequently hostile environment.

LEFT: Joey Terrill, Still-Life with Triumeq and Wrapped Candies that remind me of Félix Gonzáles-Torres, 2023. Acrylic, wrapped candies, wall paper, wood strips, and other mixed media. RIGHT: Alex Foxtton, Cowboy study (Prussian Blue), 2022. Oil on canvas. SBMA, Gift of anonymous donor. Image courtesy of the artist and Various Small Fires, Los Angeles / Dallas / Seoul. © 2023 Alex Foxtton

Drawing on the SBMA collection and loans, this exhibition explores LGBTQ+ friendship, companionship, solidarity, and desire. There is a huge variety of mediums, imagery, and perspectives. Using a unique process closer to drawing or painting than photography, Gerald Incandela shows a partially obscured body stretching to caress a tufted velvet sofa. A painting by Joey Terrill includes a serape and Triumeq, which reflect his Chicano identity and his activism for HIV+ people. Triumeq is an HIV treatment that remains unaffordable for most patients. Pui Tiffany Chow (周佩璇) has written that her paintings are “a feminist and queer reinterpretation of the western canon of female nudes.” Similarly, Alex Foxtton short-circuits the stereotypical masculinity of cowboys by dressing one up in peach and chartreuse. These are just a few of the artists on view.

Friends & Lovers is supported by Rachel Kaganoff and R&R Trust.

ACCRETION

WORKS BY LATIN AMERICAN WOMEN

September 29, 2024 - April 13, 2025
Preston Morton Gallery

Like the pearl that forms from the accretion of materials over time, the works in this exhibition contain the aggregated experiences of the artists—women living and working in the States but with roots in Argentina, Colombia, Costa Rica, Cuba, Guatemala, Mexico, and Peru.

However, unlike a pearl, their layers—comprised of earth, ceramic tiles, paint, photographs, stories, art history, and the artists' own lives as material—neither are smooth nor conceal themselves. Weaving a rich tapestry of diverse perspectives, Accretion's expressions of family bonds, immigration, labor, and self-discovery draw the attention to the intersected cultures, temporalities, and histories that constitute the layers of being.

Accretion: Works by Latin American Women is supported by the Chalifoux Endowment.

HIGHLIGHTS OF SOUTH AND SOUTHEAST ASIAN ART, HIMALAYAS

Ongoing
Emma Wood Gallery

The South Asian art in Emma Wood Gallery continues to be enriched by the return of old favorites and new acquisitions. Recently installed is the 9th-10th century Garuda, the Man-Bird as a Guardian King from Indonesia.

Garuda is the mythical Lord of Birds in both Hindu and Buddhist traditions. He is primarily known as the solar vehicle for the Hindu god Vishnu, preserver of the universe, whom Garuda transports with great speed to resolve calamities in the world. Originally placed in or outside a shrine, this magnificent sculpture attests to a period in Central Java that witnessed the flourishing of hundreds of Buddhist and Hindu temples with ambitious sculptural programs, including the temple complexes at Borobudur and Loro Jonggrang. Garuda's missing arms may have once held a serpent (naga), the staple of his diet. His finely chiseled features and the curving lines of his robust body convey a ferocious yet meditative presence.

RECENT ACQUISITION

This sculpture is meant to resemble a tree and the “foot” of a trunk while the mesh of wires and splay of metal leaves suggest a tree.

This sculpture’s title refers to a terrifying scene in The Bacchae (405 BCE) by the ancient Greek playwright Euripides. The sculpture loosely depicts the moment when King Pentheus climbed a tree, which the crazed maenads pulled down in order to kill him.

Elliott Hundley will be the subject of an exhibition, Proscenium, at the Santa Barbara Museum of Art that opens in April 2025.

EDUCATION PROGRAM HIGHLIGHT

An Ongoing Legacy

The visionary leadership of Lady Leslie Ridley-Tree is responsible for the 1991 transformation of the large residence left to the Museum by the remarkable Katharine Dexter McCormick into an important educational community resource and center for the Museum's art-making programs—the Ridley-Tree Education Center at McCormick House (RTEC).

Since then, perhaps the most dramatic change to RTEC was in 2017, when the Museum designated the apartment attached to the building as an artist residency. Because of this, SBMA has been able to host a distinguished stream of award-winning artists, writers, musicians, and scholars, making it possible for them to stay for periods of one week to one month to deliver lectures, readings, classes, performances, and workshops and participate in collaborative community programs with UCSB, SBCC, Opera Santa Barbara, Santa Barbara Symphony, and others.

This past six months allowed the Museum to expand that list, bringing back Grammy Award-winning composer musician Ted Nash for a week-long residency, during which he worked with a diverse group of students of varied backgrounds and ages as part of a partnership with Santa Barbara City College (SBCC) Summer Jazz workshop. Fittingly, the resulting concert of student compositions on the Museum's Front Terrace in July was a tribute in response to the stunning selection of works bequested to SBMA by Paul and Leslie Ridley-Tree.

A partnership with the Creative Writing program at SBCC allowed the Museum to bring El Salvadoran poet and translator Alexandra Lytton Regalado to stay for two weeks during which time she composed an original lyric in response to A TREATISE ON MAKING GOOD SHORTCOMINGS IN ALL ONE'S RELIGIOUS VOWS, a 19th-century Tibetan piece in the Asian Art collection, taught two classes in the galleries, and held a workshop and reading for students and local poets at RTEC. As a result of introductions made during her stay, Alex was later invited by Santa Barbara Poet Laureate Melinda Palacio to translate into Spanish the poetry that was featured on local buses during the month of April.

Lastly, artist Yassi Mazandi, whose work was featured in the contemporary exhibition Made by Hand/Born Digital, offered a workshop for junior high and high school art teachers, which was joined by Museum Teaching Artists, as well as a public lecture during her stay in the residence. Her “germs” and use of recycled crayons inspired projects for the 2024 Summer Art Camps.

The residencies, whether short or long, enrich us all. They allow us to take time to explore, listen, and create together in the space so beautifully envisioned by these two exceptional women, where learning is the legacy.

Mary Cassatt's Alterity and her Radical Modernism

Dr. Hollis Clayson, Professor

Emerita of Art History and Bergen Evans Professor Emerita in the Humanities, Northwestern University

Owing to her American passport, identity as an upper-class woman, family money, and her identification with the Impressionist group in Paris, Mary Cassatt's choice of subjects and the style of both her painting and intaglio printmaking were singular. The lecture will focus on the radical monstrosity of her so-called "mother and child" pictures, and the technical virtuosity and indirection of her intaglio prints. *Mary Craig Auditorium. PARALLEL STORIES

Parallel Stories is a literary and performing arts series that pairs art and artists with award-winning authors and performers of regional, national, and international acclaim. This series functions as a multidisciplinary lens through which to view the Museum's collection and special exhibitions.

Breaking the Cycle/Rewriting the Story

Sunday, November 17, 2:30 pm

Artist Narsiso Martinez and writer Alex Espinoza share their intersecting stories of family, place, identity, escape, and witness. In equally powerful narrative drawings and narrated words, these two artists create connections in situations and generations where disconnections often speak louder than truth or tenderness.

Why Empathy Matters: A Conversation with Dario Robleto, Emily Rapp Black, and Lucy Kalanithi

Sunday, December 8, 2:30 pm

Artist Dario Robleto, whose work invites us to consider the questions above, is joined in conversation by award-winning author Emily Rapp Black, whose searing, unblinking story dealing with death and grief combines an essayist's willingness to lay herself bare on the page. With them on the stage is Lucy Kalanithi, widow of Paul Sudhir Arul Kalanithi, whose book, When Breath Becomes Air, is a memoir about his life and illness with stage IV metastatic lung cancer.

ART ON LOAN: Tender Picture of E (Zantes Bildnis E) by Herbert Bayer

Bauhaus Typography at 100, curated by Rob Saunders from Letterform Archive and on view June 2024 – April 2025 at the Resnick Center for Herbert Bayer Studies, has a loan from the Santa Barbara Museum of Art's large holdings in the art of Bayer.

A member of the Bauhaus and later instrumental in founding the Aspen Institute, Bayer eventually resided in Santa Barbara with his wife Joella, a Museum Member who enjoyed its renowned program. Herbert and later Joella gave over 100 artworks to SBMA. The Resnick Center for Herbert Bayer Studies and SBMA have been collaborating since the Center opened, and SBMA regularly lends from its collection.

To complement the exhibition, a selection of Herbert Bayer works that feature text are also exhibited. Among these is a work on paper, Tender Picture of E (Zantes Bildnis E) (1928)—on loan from the expansive collection of the Santa Barbara Museum of Art, which has one of the largest holdings of works by Herbert Bayer.

Herbert Bayer studied mural painting and typography at the Bauhaus School from 1921 to 1923 and would return as a teacher of advertising, design, and typography from 1925 to 1928. During his time at Bauhaus, he created the Universal Typeface, consisting of all lowercase letters, which would become the signature font of the Bauhaus. He is known for his integration of photographs into graphic compositions, creating a unique visual vocabulary. Tender Picture of E is a gouache painting representing a surreal, graphic composition of the letter E, repeated four times, floating through frames and cloudy sky—a motif that is characteristic of Bayer's work.

SBMA ANNOUNCES James Glisson as Chief Curator and Curator of Contemporary Art

The Santa Barbara Museum of Art is pleased to announce that James Glisson, PhD has been named Chief Curator and will continue in his role as Curator of Contemporary Art.

Glisson's involvement with SBMA began as Curator of Contemporary Art in February of 2020. In this role, he curated numerous significant exhibitions and was responsible for the Museum's acquisition of more than 100 artworks. Amada Cruz, Eichholz Foundation Director, attests that "his commitment to scholarly rigor and community outreach sets us on a strong course for the future." Prior to SBMA, Glisson worked at The Huntington Library, Art Museum, and Botanical Gardens in San Marino, where he served as the Interim Virginia Steele Scott Chief Curator of American Art and the Bradford and Christine Mishler Associate Curator of American Art. His projects there received awards from the American Library Association, American Alliance of Museums, and Choice Magazine. He previously held curatorial posts at the Art Institute of Chicago, the Saint Louis Art Museum, and the Block Museum of Art at Northwestern University. Glisson holds a PhD in Art History from Northwestern University, an MA in Art History from the State University of New York, Stony Brook, and a BA in Art History at New College of Florida.

MEMBER PROFILE: Beverly and Michael Steinfeld

Beverly and Michael Steinfeld are the inspiration behind Santa Barbara Museum of Art's newest giving program: the Gallery Guardians.

The Steinfelds joined the Museum as Members soon after landing in Santa Barbara in 2014. After successful careers in medicine and psychotherapy and raising two remarkable daughters, Mike and Beverly looked west to start their next chapter. Relocating from Pennsylvania, Santa Barbara proved walkable and friendly while also satisfying their voracious appetite for the arts.

The Steinfelds are a quintessential example of people in the community whose daily lives are made brighter by their participation in the arts. They enjoy much about the Museum; Mike shared that they especially loved the Van Gogh exhibition and choose photography as their favorite medium. He writes, "The lectures add breadth to our knowledge base. We also like the 1st Thursday free availability for the community. The Museum is an amazing community resource, and watching the downtown arts district expand around the Museum has been exciting to watch."

In 2015, well before the start of the Museum's new monthly giving program, the Steinfelds supported the capital campaign for the Museum renovation. "We started giving monthly during the early stages of the Imagine More Campaign because we were asked!" shared Beverly. "We understood that at a time when there was so much change happening at the Museum, reliable donations were very meaningful."

Mike and Beverly continue to give as the inaugural members of the Gallery Guardians. Their recurring donations support the Annual Fund, which finances the Museum's day-to-day operations and is critical to the Museum's mission to integrate art into the lives of people.

We invite you to join the Gallery Guardians today! Please consider converting your annual fund gift to a recurring gift and sustain funding throughout the year. Visit www.sbma.net/support/give/annual-fund or contact Molly Kemper, Annual Fund Manager, at mkemper@sbma.net.

THANK YOU

The Museum gratefully acknowledges these individuals, organizations, and foundations for their investment in the work of SBMA. The community's generosity is vital to sustaining SBMA's extraordinary level of programming, research, exhibitions, and acquisitions and supports the mission to integrate art into the lives of people.

Included are the names of those who made gifts of $2,500 or greater in cash, stock, and pledges in the fiscal year ending June 30, 2024. Bequests and Memberships are incorporated into the totals. If there is an error or an omission, please bring it to the attention of Karen Kawaguchi at 805.884.6428.

THE ART OF Giving

The future of the Santa Barbara Museum of Art will be shaped by benefactors who choose to honor the Museum with gifts from their estates.

Legacy gifts strengthen the Museum's endowment, provide essential annual income, and support its growing collection and interactive educational programs. By including SBMA in your long-term plans, you can achieve the goals that are important to you—to benefit yourself and your family, as well as the institution that you value and believe in.

If you are interested in or have already included the Santa Barbara Museum of Art in your estate plans, please contact Karen Kawaguchi at 805.884.6428 or kkawaguchi@sbma.net.

“Thank you for a wonderful and fun trip with a lovely group of congenial and friendly participants. We loved it!!”

—LAURA AND KEN ADLER, HONOLULU TOUR

“I loved the tour. The itinerary was amazing. I loved the combination of museums, historical sites, and access to private homes. I really appreciate SBMA’s connections with all of these, getting us special tours with museum curators and access to local individuals who provide unique insights that are not available to the average visitor. The tour was incredibly well organized, communication was excellent, and everything ran like clockwork.” —MARIA WALLIS, HONOLULU TOUR
