

Pick a Summer Posy

Scavenger Hunt Activity

Artists often choose to paint flowers. Sometimes they are carefully arranged in vases, sometimes they grow in gardens, sometimes they seem so real that you could pluck them from their stems, sometimes they are just a squiggly line or a quick smudgy sketch from the artist's imagination.

We invite you to imagine these works from the Museum's collection as a garden. Look closely at the details of individual flowers pictured here and sketch your favorites. If you like, you can add your blossoms to the bouquet that is started for you in the line drawing on the next page. Then, color your "posy" or bunch of flowers any way you like using paints, pencils, markers, or crayons. Remember, in the artist's imagination a rose doesn't have to be red!

Sketch your favorite flowers in the boxes above.

Create a bouquet of flowers by drawing in your favorites from the Museum's collection, and color it at home!

Image Credits: Raoul Dufy, Composition (detail), 1926. Oil on canvas. SBMA, Museum purchase with funds from the bequest of Mrs. Alfred B. Clark. Marsden Hartley, Still Life (detail), ca. 1929-30. Oil on cardboard. SBMA, Gift of Wright S. Ludington. Adrian Allinson, Amaryllis (detail), n.d. Oil on board. SBMA, Gift of Mary and Will Richeson, Jr. Alfredo Ramos Martinez, Still Life with Flowers, Uruguayan Lace Tablecloth (detail), n.d. Oil on drywall panel. SBMA, Gift of Dr. and Mrs. Ron Lawrence. Piet Mondrian, Rhododendron (detail), ca. 1905. Oil on canvas. SBMA, Margaret Abbott Memorial Fund. Andre Derain, Still Life with Pumpkin (La Citrouille) (detail), 1939. Oil on canvas. SBMA, Bequest of Wright S. Ludington. Edouard Vuillard, Fuchsias and French Marigolds (detail), 1903. Oil on cardboard. SBMA, Gift of Millicent A. Rogers in honor of Ala Story.